The blood-soaked Lemona ridge has been recaptured. by the Insurgent army before Bilbao.

After many hours of attack by Insurgent airmen, assisted by artillery, the infantry of the late General Mola's army surged up_towards the ridge. There were 15 tanks in the van of the assault.

The Basques resisted strongly, their machinegunners mowing down successive waves of Insurgents, who kept stubbornly to their task, fighting with the most conspicuous courage. Reinforcements backed up the attack, and eventually the infantry reached the Basque positions and drove the defenders back on their second

Growing Output of Magnesium

NEW ALLOYS ADDING TO ITS USES

Herr Adolf Hitler, Chancellor Air Ministry's Interest

Plans are being made for the rapid expansion of magnesium production in this country.

Magnesium is the lightest of the normal metals, and every encouragement to its production is being given, it is understood, by the Air Ministry. It is already extensively used in light machine parts, and new alloys of magnesium are now being produced which suggest that it will find many more uses in aircraft.

Just over two years ago production in Great Britain was negligible-not more than 100 tons of the metal a. year. Then the first large-scale magnesium factory was opened in Essex, and by the end of last year production had reached 1,500 tons.

Now a second factory is in operation near Manchester, and the end of the year it is estimated that total output will exceed 3,000 tons. A third factory is likely to be built in either Septland or South Wales, and may use a different process from either of the other two.

EXTRACTION METHODS

One method of production which is being considered is to heat magnesium ore with coke to a temperature of some 3,600 degrees Fahrenheit. At this temperature the magnesium would "boil over" from the furnace, and to prevent the vapour combining with the oxygen of the air a hydrogen atmosphere would have to be used.

On entry into a cooler chamber the magnesium vapour would then condense in the form of solid globules of the metal. These would again have to be re-melted, still in an atmosphere of hydrogen, and run each year.

DEFEATING

THE MOTH against him becomes more rigorous

Scrupulous cleanliness is the first weapon in moth warfare. Moths revel in solled garments. They appear to thrive on a mixed diet of spots and cloth; and have a violent dislike to sunlight and fresh air.

Clothes which are to be stored should have a thorough sunning and alring first. Brushing or beating loosens eggs. Don't forget the seams and packets. The Temale moth is full of guile and likes hidden spots. Washing an article before storing without delay. Carpets require great care during summer months. Any spots or stains should be dealt with at once, and newspaper placed underneath will safeguard the health of a carpet.

For the fitted type, sprinkle Epsom salts under the edge. Crush the salts first, so that they will not damage the carpet.

To de-moth furs and woollens, there is nothing to equal newspaper. Moths have no literary leanings, and hate the smell of printer's ink. When the parcel is made up, fold over the edges more than once, and paste along the openings. Cold surfaces also defeat the moth, so cotton or linen bags are excellent for storing furs. BL. W.

SHAL WE KEEP OUR HOME?

MY husband, and I are facing problem that dozens of other middle-aged couples must have known and solved.

All our lives we have lived in the suburbs, and our roomy old-fashloned house has been "home" to five children, now grown-up and out in the world on their own. Four of them are married, one works in another town, and I am no longer fit enough' to manage a house larger than we need. So we are moving quite soon. And the problem is where?

I fancy a nice little modern bungalow, full of new labour-saving devices, a shining kitchenette, a perfect hot-water system, no stairs to climb. no need for any but occasional daily help. That would be lovely for our two selves! But what about our visitors? Ever since the first daughter married she has liked to come home for occasional holidays. Grandchildren have come at Christmas and Easter, after measles, and while domestic crises passed at home. Sometimes every bedroom in the old house has been full, and family reunions brightened the dull old rooms

If we move to a tiny bungalow, we close an unfriendly door on weekenders and visiting grandchildren, and all the happiness they have brought. On the other hand, if we take a house larger than we need, it means more work for me, a higher rent for rooms that remain empty for nine months of the year, maybe stairs to climb, and the more frequent necessity of help in the kitchen: It means, in fact paying all the year round for the pleasure of holiday visitors, and we are not over-blessed with money and energy these days,

Freedom from Domestic Cares

My husband has a bright idea. Why not give up the house altogether, give up housekeeping, and reside in a pleasant private hotel? There, as permanent boarders; we could have a private sittingroom and bedroom at very reduced terms, and our weekly. bill for two would be less than the all-round cost of living in a house of our, own. I would not have to trouble with cooking and housework, domestic help and entertaining. We would have privacy in our own sittingroom, company if we wanted it in the lounge, and if children and grandchildren came to stay, there would be nothing_to_worry_about.

In cold £ s. d. his idea is sound. He knows other business men who have tried it, and wouldn't go back to housekeeping for anything. Living in the hotel would mean less travelling for him, and he wouldn't be worried with the hundred and one small bills like gas, and electricity, rates and taxes, gardening costs, &c., that add so much to the cost of living in your own home. At the end of each week he'd pay the hotel bill and that would finish it. .

I could sit back and enjoy the leisure I haven't had for thirty years. I WAS shown some delightful vase where the slanting sunrays strike in My domestic duties would be restricted to a little personal washing and ironon of buttons. I would have plenty outer surface remains creamily matt equally at home here and there as of time to write to all my children, to from the firing, offering a perfect in the centre of a small dining table. pay afternoon calls, to go to the concerts I have had to miss so often I could have old ladies to talk to, to play cards with, and a garden where could sit and read on summer afternoons. Will Increased Leisure Mean Happiness?

Yes, but are we going to be happy living like that? Am I, who for thirty years have been surrounced by my own household gods and my own people, going to settle down comfortably in atmosphere of a public (even if it is called "private") hotel? Am II going to miss the pottering about in the kitchen, the baking of little scones for tea, the making of toffee for watching, wide-eyed little grandson? Am I going to be bored and restless-or perhaps perfectly

I wish I knew. Just now we are standing rather forlornly at the threeforked road. A tiny house for ourselves alone? A roomy house that will still be home for our family? Or an hotel, which might and yet might not be "Home?"

"There are many other points upon which praise is merited by your people in this country but I will not dwell on them now. I will put it into a nutshell by saying that no section of its community stands higher as law-abiding and valuable citizens than the Chinese of British Gulana."

A SIGNIFICANT OMEN

"After what I have said you may believe that I am sincere in promising to lend a sympathetic ear to the request which this Address contains, that is that if and when the need arises I will do what I can to secure that this country for which I have so deep an affection, may recruit its population from a source which has already supplied such worthy citizens. This would be a service which would gladly render in gratitude to British Guiana. I trust that the ties which unite this country with Hongkome may continue to grow during my administration of that outpost of the Empire; it is, I hope, a significant omen that this country's import trade from Hongkong during the last five years has grown from less than five thousand to nearly ninety thousand dollars. The exports during the period are not so great; so far as . know they consist of one Governor, now awaiting shipment.

"I cannot close these remarks without a word of acknowledgment of the excellent work done by the Chinese Association for the Chinese Association for the Chinese people in British Guiana. You, Mr. President, have spoken modestly of that work and I will not reiterate your remarks. Both for those who are already here and find themselves in adversity or in need of recreation and friendly contacts and for those who seek a new home in this country, this Association plays the parts of guide, philosopher and friend That is a very high conception of civic duty and its value is enhanced by the gulet unassuming way which it is always carried out. behalf of the country's administration I tender the Association my thanks for all that, they are doing.

SWATOW QUARREL PROBE-INTO-RECENT ASSAULT

Swntow, June 4. Despite the progress made in the negotiation between Mr. S. F. Ling and the Japanese Officials, including the Canton Japanese Vice-Consul, it is generally believed that more time will be required before a final settlement of the Kiyoshi Aoyama case, can be reached.

The result of the Sino-Japanese discussion has been reported to the Canton Government by Mr. S. F. Ling over the Swatow-Conton radio telephone. Further talks were carried out yesterday and the day before; but there has been no fresh development. It is understood that Mr. Ling is ready to return to Canton by air to-morrow.

The negotiations so, far can be summarised as follow:

The Japanese officials have pointed out' that to press them to report to the Chinese Police regarding any change of address is illegal. Mr. Aoyama is a Japanese Consulate officer and therefore his arrest by Chinese authorities is considered to be an insult to the Japanese juris-

Mr. Aoyama acted only on selfdefence in the assault. Counter views as presented to the Japanese by Mr. S. F. Ling were that the laws requiring reports to the Chinese Police regarding change of address have long been observed by foreigners in Swatow and elsewhere in China. This does not apply to the Japanese only. Mr. Ling cited cases in which Japanese nationals have observed this law.

Regarding the second point Mr. Ling explained that since Mr. Aoyama did not report to the Police about his removal he had obviously violated the laws which have been observed by foreigners. Mr. Aoyama was advised by the Chinese Police Officer to make the necessary report; but he refused. He even assulted the Chinese Officer.

"It was pointed out that during the quarrel Mr. Aoyama was in plain clothes. He claimed that he was' member of the Japanese Consulate staff but could furnish no proof. It was impossible for the Chinese Police officer to recognise him.

Regarding the third point Mr. Ling declared that the Chinese Police Officer concerned did not assault Mr. Aoyama when the latter was at the Police Station.

Mr. Greig's Speech Replying, Mr. Greig sald:

Ever since, as a very young man, I was put in charge of dockyard sinff and workmen both in England and here. I have held the opinion that a Manager could not be successful even in the very best equipped establishment unless he, in addition to being the master, is also the friend and adviser of those under his charge, and in all his dealings is honest, just and considerate towards his men. It has been my constant endeavour in the 28 years that I have worked for Taikoo to uphold those principles.

During my long stay with you, and including my short visits to my home, the Talkoo Dockyard has never been out of my thoughts, and wherever I have gone I have looked for machinery and tools, that would keep our yard in a very highly efficient state.

In the near future, the completion of he Nanchang-Changsha, the Changsha-Chungking and the Chungking-Chengtu lines is expected, construction work having already commenced on certain sections. When these projects are completed, it will be possible to travel all 'the way from Shanghai to Szechuan by rail. Present progress and future developments are part of an ambitious five-year plan which has already been mapped out and which is being carried through step by step. Sir Geoffry Northcote's modesty of mien is like Mr. Stanley Baldwin's. It merely cloaks a very shrewd mind, one which may or may not be capable of lightning flashes of judgment, but would, in any event, be careful to conceal them, letting you know only in instalments, as it were, that it has seen through you, and your "propositions".

The fact is, that both Sir Geoffry and Lady Northcote intensely dislike anything loud, flashy, meretricious. No Governor of British Guiana has been more free of ostentation, and no Governor has carried off ceremonial occasions with more natural poise. He has revived the practice of Governors' walking along the lovely samaan-bordered alamedas with which the capital abounds; he uses the Mounted Police out-riders before his state car only when the occasion really demands this picturesque bit of ceremonial.

Kowloon Riding School Holds Gymkhana

The Gymkhana which was held by the Kowloon Riding School on Saturday was a great success. The intermittent rain did not deter some two hundred people from attending. Parents, friends and riding enthusiasts were well rewarded with very fine exhibitions of riding. The several competitions which were held demanded good horsemanship and those winners who were pupils reflected the greatest credit on the School, Miss Susan Robertson, under six years of age and one of the youngest riders at the gymkhana, was loudly applauded for her exhibition; in which she showed great confidence; and polse.

RELAY TEAM'S FEAT.

An unofficial Chinese swimming record was established at the South China Athletic Association's pavilion at North Point on Saturday night, when a South China team clipped a second off the Kwangtung Provincial mark for the 400 metres free-style relay during the course of a very successful opening gala. The bad weather failed to keep away enthusinsts, who turned up several hundred strong and were treated to some very good swimming.

As the record time of four minutes and 45 seconds for the relay was set up in the sea, with a fairly strong current moving one way, it will not be officially recognised .

Mrs. S. W. Ta'o, wife of the Hon. Dr. S. W. Ts'o, distributed the prizes at the conclusion of the gala:

Co speak the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth may justly be required of the average witness; it cannot be expected, it should not be exacted, of any critical writer or lecturer on any form of

This wrote Algernon Charles Swinburne, the greatest Tyric poet of the ninteenth century—and for how much else of Time?—the centenary of whose birth was recently celebrated.

So I have his own authority for praising him in a wilful way; over-emphasising here, underrating there; omitting on an imperial scale—even if I knew the whole truth about him.

I cannot see that anyone knew or knows the truth about this miorious, ecstatic, violently entirusinstic, passionately prejudiced poet, whose Muse responded rapturously to "alcoholic stimulants." though I would back the late, much maligned Theodore Watts-Dunton, with whom Swinburne kept house for the last thirty years of his life, to have known most.

But, again as Swinburne said. "Let us begin at the end, as all reasonable people always do."

HEN Swinburne died, on April 10, 1909, he was held by many people to have had the poet's flame in him damped, if not entirely quenched, by Watts-Dunton.

. The legend has grown and swollen, battening on the hypocritical venom with which smug romanticism regards avowed respectability, and Watts-Dunton was all that. The romantics wanted Swinburne, who had certainly been a young devil, to die an old devil. -Watts-Dunton-dld-nothing-tochange the essential Swinburne.

But he saved his life. It was a highly neurotic, semidissipated invalid of 43 who came to share his house, "The Pines," at Putney. It was a pleasantly eccentric, brilliantly intellectual, contented old poet who died there.

. Part, of the truth seems to be that those who have been emotionally disturbed by Swinburne. flung to heights and left to find their own way down as best they may-for Swinburne's rebellions give no satisfaction-resent him having final comfort. They grudge the most turbulent river winding somewhere safe to afternoon tea. And, now, to go back to the beginning. Swinburne was the son of Admiral C. H. Swinburne, second son of Sir John Swinburne, baronet. His mother was a daughter of the third Earl of Ashburnham. A former Lady Swinburne bore her husband thirty children, who all lived and throve.

Swinburne mentions her in a letter to Clarence Stedman, and adds, "I think you will allow that when this race chose at last to produce a poet, it would have been at least remarkable if he had been content to write nothing but hymns and idyls for clergymen and young ladies to read out in chapels and drawing-rooms." His childhood was spent between the Isle of Wight and Northumberland; and the sea early got into his blood—the sea, his Mother Sea, whose tides swing through his poetry like the pulsing of a heart. Of swimming he writes, "Once more I give me, body and soul to thee, who hast my soul for ever ..."

TIVE years at Eton, and four at Oxford, sent him into the world bubbling with poetry.

It was, poetically, a staid world bound (as Sir Edmund Gosse sald) in the bondage of the lamble: Swinburne left it " revelling in the freedom of the choriambus, the dactyl and the anapæst."

Let us illustrate that. An iambic is a metrical "foot"—a poetical rhythm—consisting of a short syllable followed by a long one: Let observation with extensive

Now say " Miles, and miles, and miles of desolation! "that is Swinburne using the trochaic metre long and short the opposite of the jambic. Now say " blackberry "—that is a dactyl; one long and two short syllables.

-jar flickers the flight of the รายนโโอเซร . . . When he published "Atalanta in Calydon "-that glorious lyrical tragedy of Greek mythology-he appealed to the more cultivated, but narrower, public of 1865. When he published "Peems and Ballads," in 1836, he created a sensation that it is hard to imagine to-day.

"Poems and Ballads" at once intoxicated and shocked. There was the marvellous rhythm of them; their cataract of words, wild and entrancing; and there was evidence "that the author deemed fit for poetical treatment certain passional aspects of human life concerning which the best English tradition had hitherto been one of reticence.".

That was very naughty of him: and, of course, all the "shocking" passages were credited by the shocked to his personal experience.

CWINBURNE was never Sdeprayed; but he was always in extravagant revolt, and a rebel of the most disconcerting type. He hypnotises his followers, but leads them nowhere. He cannot see the goal himself:

he only knows he is inspired by a blind hatred of conventions and a yearning for what Buddhists call the Inexpressible Absolute. He looked for God, but could not see through his loathing of priests and religions.

He sought Freedom, worshipping Mazzini, the Italian liberator, and Victor Hugo, who exiled himself from the second French Empire: but he was profoundly relieved when Mazzini told him that he need not stand for Parliament (as he had been invited to do, with all expenses paid), that he was doing the Cause a greater service with his natural work. So gladly he returns to his lonely lyre—Swinburne's allitera-

himself against practical troubles by his own magical verse. And how magical it is, as an anodyne, a drug. When you are young read Swinburne to reinforce that rapture of outlook of which your elders seem so deficient: whenever the world seems against you, read Swinburne and forget the world.

H! but he is more A than that: he is the superb master of verbal music, of exquisite melanchely and exquisite joy in beauty, of nobly, visionary phrases, of dreams. . . .

From the bountiful infinite west, from the happy memorial

Full of the stately repose and the lordly delight of the dedd Where the fortunate islands are lit with the light of inefable And the sound of a sea without wind is about them....

We see him as a young man with a mane of Titian-red hair. He is five feet four inches in height; his eyes are plercingly blue; his voice almost shrill. He moves his hands a great deal; he is excited about everything; he walks jerkily.

Dr. Arthur Compton-Rickett has described his quarrels with cabmen conducted, in the "choicest Rabelaisian language"; how he would faiter when reading his poems to a circle of friends until restored with a couple of glasses of champagne-and his exit from the room, after a jerky bow right and left, like the object of a vanishing trick.

He plunged into the Bohemian life of London, and nearly wrecked himself. Dante Gabriel Rossetti had a good influence on him, but he only found real peace and leisure in his association with Watts-Dunton, and produced as fine work, despite that supposed wet-blanket, as he had done before.

TE loved children. Al his life he either loved or hated: there was no middle course for him, as is particularly apparent in his literary criticism, and such criticism, J think, is the most delightful: the jury should make its considered judgment for itself after hearing the prejudiced counsel. Swinburne never belonged to a jury; he was ever the special pleader. What more of the truth? He was a wit. His parodies in "Heptalogia" are brilliant, including one of himself. Ho never lost his ardour. ready for battle to the end. And did not Dr. Compton-Rickett once see him, as an old man, dancing on blossoming almond tree?

Watts-Dunton gave us the inscription he would—had he a voice. in the matter-have put on a marble column to Swinburne's memory. But I think I have a better one. It is from Coleridge's Kubla Khan-

For he on honey-dew hath fed And drunk the milk of Paradise.

---To-day's Thought----WE are not sure of sorrow And joy was never sure.

INcisome form or other half! the world is trying to get the other half to keep a secret, usually with indifferent success. The receiver of secrets never intends to say a word; But the success and failure of secret keeping, or giving away, has an interesting psychology.

What makes anybody tell a secret who has been expected to keep silence? Exactly the same thing which has caused the original teller of the secret to tell it to her-namely, the mental itching.

The faint irritation of an idea, an irritation to be relieved only by the counter-Irritant of turning the idea into words, is intensely contagious. If one realised that in yielding to the desire to tell a secret they are giving to another the infection which is infecting them, it would be obvious that the odds are against the secret being kept. In some people this "Itching to tell" is far stronger than in others. Certain people are more susceptible to the malady. Who are the susceptible ones? Women? Consider a tea table. The affairs of yesterday, to-day, and to-morrow have been carefully reviewed, and talk dies with the breeze.

Somebody joins the party, and the party turns to him gratefully. "What have you heard"? Science, education, politics, and ethics-what things are these to offer at tea? The new arrival remembers something which has recently been confided to him. What fun to make the party sit up! He says casually, "By the way, I understand-" And the party sits up and takes notice. The secret-teller has fed in himself an obscure desire, never sufficiently nourished by tea.

Vanity-The Root of the Trouble

Fundamentally the Eccret-teller is a vain person. He wants a momentary spotlight, and to reveal a secret has the effect of drawing. temporary attention to himself. He wants to be a little centre of interest and attention. If he could be brilliant, he would. If he had something spicy to reveal. legitimately, he would reveal it. If he had at the moment any better way of accenting his own importance by appearing to have the inside knowledge of some affair, he would choose that way. But as none of these is his, he seizes them by capture. He recalls the secret entrusted to him. It is his drum. He bangs |

What else is accountable for the revealing of secrets?

Sometimes the desire to help someone else-to give him a hint, a tip for his own good, to turn an advantage his way.

Say the secret runs like this: "The Smiths are going to sell-their home in the autumn and move to Brighton, but they do not want anything said for business reasons.' But the one who hears realises that Smith's job would be fine for his brother, or that Smith's house would be desirable for his brother-in-law. The resulting confidences and inquiries sufficiently advertise to two circles that the Smiths are leaving for Brighton.

A Social Lever

Sometimes personal advantage occrues to the one imparting the secret. Special knowledge is a kind of legal tender which can be used socially as well as commercially. . If a man is confidentially told that Smith is to have some property left him, he can do a good turn to the real estate men of his acquaintance if he tells them of Smith's prospects.

But neither of these two grounds for secret telling is so common as is the first, for the obvious reason that these involve appreciable points of honour-a brand of honour which the incident was brought to his regard-whereas a mental itch is more difficult to recognise as involved with

Another psychological basis for secret telling is the curlous idea that, because someone is a wife or a husband or a relative, he or she is excepted from a promise to keep silence. This strange tribal trace remains in many otherswise quite sane and fairly evolved individuals. It is a survival of "keeping it all in the family," whether it is disgrace or distinction. Here are five queries:-

Is the desire to take part in talk or in life a masculine or a feminine trait, or both? Is a desire to interest someone whom one loves a masculine or a feminine trait, or both? Is the impulse to confide a secret to one of the family a masculine or a feminine impulso? advantage masculine or feminine, and do men or women most often yield to this temptation?

Is the desire to be in the spotlight. masculine or feminine, or both?

The answer to three of these querics is unquestionably-both. That is, it is unquestionably both a masculine prescription of a British physician and are equally good for men, and growing children. Sold by all chemisis.

RUSSIA'S NEW POLICY

"SUPER-GIANTS OF INDUSTRY MUST GO"

Moscow, May 10. COVIET Russia is abandoning the policy of creeting super-giants of industry—those enormous plants which were "featured" during the first two Five-year Plans-on the ground that they have sacrificed quality to quantity. "The Gargantuan phase must got" declared M. Mezhlauk, the new Commissar of Heavy Industry, at a

The conference was devoted laying down the guiding principles of the third Five-Year Plan. Among the huge structures affected by this new policy are the Magnitogorsk and Kuznetsk steel plants, the Chelyabinsk tractor works and the Kramatorsk machine-building plants.

Some of these employ more than 20,000 workers and form the centres around which entire new cities have been built.

With the groundwork of Russia's industrialisation now firmly established the central problem of the new plan will be the increase of the productivity of labour.

Railway transport, vital to national defence, will be aided by the concentration of entire new industrial units near the sources of raw materials, thus freeing thousands of freight cars.

CHILDREN'S CLINIC HON, DR. WELLINGTON OPENS NEW HOSPITAL

Attended by appropriate ceremony. In accordance with Government the new Precious Blood Children's fired after the opening.

> The Chairman of the Hospital Committee, Mr. Nicholas Tse Yungkwong, in his welcoming speech, revealed that the new Hospital was still in need of funds to the extent of nearly $30,000, and appealed to the community and the various sports clubs to remember the institution in their distribution of funds for charity.

The Hon. Dr. Wellington, who was accompanied by Mrs. Wellington, was met on his arrival by an assembly of the Committee, doctors and staff of the Hospital, and the Vicar Apostolic of Hongkong, the Rt. Rev. Mgr. Henry Valtorta. A group photograph was taken, after which the Chairman delivered his address.

Amongst the large gathering of friends and well-wishers present were Prof. W. I. Gerrard, Mr. F. H. Loseby, Mr. G. P. de Martin, Mr. J. M. Alves, the Rev. Fr. Spada, Mr. Fung Keung, Dr. L. Peng-sum, Dr. Sherry, Dr. Guterres, the Rev. Fr. A. Granelli, Dr. Pau, Mr. J. Caer Clark, Mr. Chan Wal-chuen, Sisters of the Precious Blood, and French and Italian Sisters.

The Hospital is believed to be the first erected solely for the welfare and treatment of children in Kowloon and the New Territories, and consists of a cement and concrete building of three stories with the nurses' quarters on the roof, built to the very best advantage, with the Alexandra Bldg. Important Chinese Suggestion In Farewell Address To Sir G. Northcote

POPULAR GOVERNOR IS FETED

Georgetown, Wed., May 5. Described as a "plentiful source of suitable man-power," Hongkong was suggested as an important key to the exploitation of British Guiana's Guiana may then once again, find vast recources by the encouragement of Chinese settlers, when the development of this country demanded the importation of additional population. The suggestion was made by the Chinese Association of British Guiana, at a the exploitation of her vast resources valedictory function, in honour of His Excellency the Governor. Sir Geoffry settlers to this country. Northcote, K.C.M.G., and Lady Northcote. The function took place in the Chinese Association Hall, Brickdam.

Replying, His Excellency expressed the hope that the ties which united this Country with Hongkong, would Tact, Wisdom, continue to grow during his administration of that outpost of the Empire. His Excellency also paid a tribute Sympathetic to the Chinese community, observing "that no section of the community stands higher as law-abiding and valuable Understanding citizens than the Chinese of British Guiana."

Wants Team Here For Chinese New Year: Feb. 4 Too Late

BIG FINANCIAL GUARANTEE

(By "Veritaa")

According to a London newspaper, the Islington Corinthians football team will start their tour CHINESE TO of the Near and Far East on October 9.

They will leave London on the Modasa on that date and are expected to return to England in May, 1938. Eighteen out of 20 players have already been chosen, with Harry HONGKONG? trainer-coach.

The schedule at the present time provides for the party to visit Malta on October 17, but the opening games will be played in Egypt, the squad being due in Port Said on October

They will then proceed by easy stages to Colombo, Calcutta, Rangoon, Penang, Philippines, China, Japan, Canada and United States.

According to present arrangements the Corinthians are expected in Hongkong on February 4, but it is hoped to get this changed as this date is subsequent to the Chinese New

South China A. A. who are chiefly interested in the Corinthians' visit to Hongkong, are making big efforts to persuade the tourists to arrive in the Colony a few days earlier so that it will be possible to stage a programme of matches over the Chinese New

FINANCIAL GUARANTEE

The Chinese have made a financial guarantee which has been accepted by the tourists. But emphasia has been placed on the fact that if the Corinthians cannot arrive here in time for the New Year, that they will be required to play on both the Friday and Saturday, February 5 and 6, otherwise there will be small chance of the Chinese obtaining good enough "gates" to cover the imposing guarantee which has been made.

However, I am officially informed that there is every likelihood of the Corinthians changing their schedule in order to be in Hongkong during the Chinese New Year.

South China A.A. officials are going right shead with preparations for the visit. Already a tentative programme has been formulated, providing for a match in which between the Corinthians and team fully representative of local clubs. It is possible that two players from five of the leading teams in Hongkong will be invited to participate.

Several of the Colony's best players will be absent in Shanghai for the Interport, but it is believed that will be possible still to turn out strong and representative team.

Des Moines, Ia., May 30. All members of the . Des Moines Western' League Ceam and three of the Octar Rapids team were pole helmets as they went to bat in their game, here to-day. The action was the result of the serious injury to Mickey Cochrane, Detroit Tiger manager, whose skull was fractured by a pitched ball last week. Western League officials said that eight home runs clouted in the course of to-day's game proved that the experiment had been a "moral success." It was suggested, however, that a helmet lighter than a polo helmet be used, and that one be designed to protect only the side of the face toward the pitcher. Des Moines won the game by a 10-9 score.

A Chinese team may compete in next year's Seven-A-Side rugby competition for the Blarney Shield.

I am informed that strenuous efforts will be made to raise a Chinese Seven to take part in this tournament which is one of the biggest attractions of the rugger season in Hongkong.

Up to the present rugby has been played only by the Europeans in Hongkong, but it is believed that i will be found possible to raise a side of seven from the many Chinese who were educated in England and learnt the game there.

Dr. S. To Wong is very enthusiastic his utmost to get a team together.

A Team Of 18

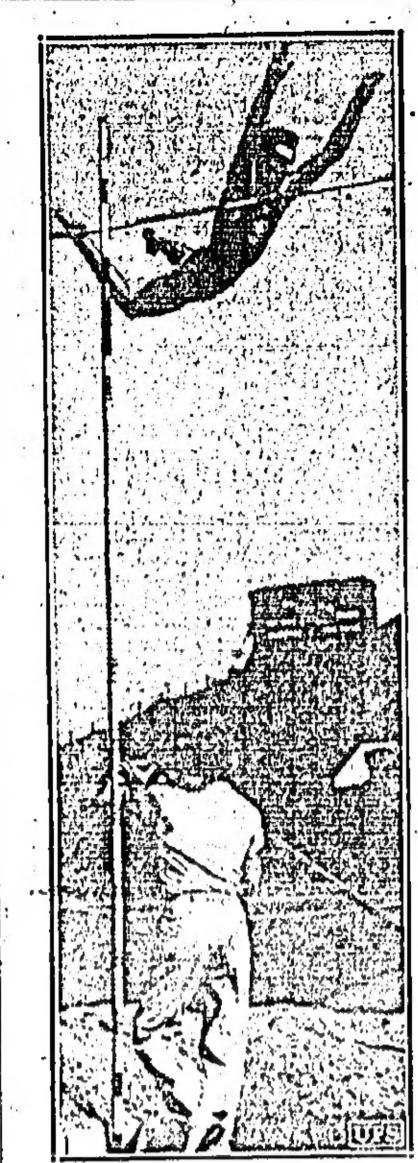

(By "Veritas")

South China Athletic Association will start off on their tour of Indo-China, Siam, Malaya, Java and Batavia next week, the squad of eighteen players leaving on Tuesday for Haiphong.

An exceedingly full programme has been arranged and the footballers will be away for over three months. South China are taking their leading players including Lee. Wal-tong, Li Wing-chul, Wong Mce-shun, Hing-choi, Lee Kwok-wal, Tak-ful, Ho Ka-keung, Fung Kingchoung, Tay Qua-liang, Tso Kwaishing, Lai Shui-wing and others.

It is hoped also that Ip Pak-wa will be able to make the trip as this will probably be his last appearance in a representative S.C.A.A. side.

The Hongkong team will play in Saigon, Bangkok, Medan, and Penang on their way to Java and Batavia. 'It is not likely that a match will be played in Singapore, but Java and Batavia have suggested an imposing programme of something like a dozen

The Master of the Rolls said the point was that, in order to ascertain whether an overpayment had been made it would be necessary for the court to examine the state of the account between the paries. "But 'that," said his Lordship, "the court is not entitled to do, since by taking such an account, the court would be Tam Kong-pak, Leung recognising wagering transactions, and therefore would be doing the very thing which the Gaming Act 1845 did not permit." Lord Justice Scott agreed, and the appeal was accordingly allowed with costs.

Municipal Pensions Act

SECURITY AT 65 FOR WHOLE-TIME OFFICERS

BILL making it compulsory for local authorities to provide for the superannuation of their whole-time officers was recently presented in Parliament by the Minister of Health.

Superannuation schemes at present are at the discretion of the local authorities.

In England and Wales, 944 authorities have availed themselves of the present permissive Act, while 25 others have schemes in force under other powers.

But 587 local authorities (five county councils, 12 county borough councils, one Metropolitan borough council, 109 non-county borough councils, 271 urban district councils and 189 rural district councils) have no superannuation schemes.

The new Bill makes superan- "It is extremely fierce when inter- inter- fored with and is likely to turn and nuntion compulsory for all fight dogs or human belong if 'whole-time" officers.

It is estimated that pension rights will thus be conferred on approximately 20,000 officers who do not at present enjoy

EMPLOYEES' SHARE

Employees who are already pensionable will continue to pay annual contributions of 5 per cent. of salary, but officers who become superannuable for the first time under the new Bill are to contribute 6 per cent., equivalent contributions being payable by the employing authority.

Superannuation of other municipal employees (i.e., broadly, manual workers), as distinct from officers, will still be a matter within the discretion of the employing authorities.

Mr. Walter Elliot (Secretary for Scotland) has introduced a similar Bill for Scotland, where it is estimated that about 12,000 whole-time officers are included at present, and about 4,300 are not included, Manila, June 7.

The wirless operator of the Tjikarang, Mr. H. J. Aisma, related the story this morning and spoke modestly of the work done by his colleagues and himself, though actually it was directly due to the officers of this ship that the Oliva was found and the injured members of her crew

"The Oliva and ourselves left Manila the same day," related Mr. Atsma. "We for Hongkong and the Oliva for Singapore. We heard from Manila and from the Oliva that the ship was on fire but as several other vessels, including the Agamemnon, which arrived here to-day, and the Friderun, were on their way to lend assistance we continued on our course. Later in the day we received a request from Manila for medical assistance, however, and as we were the only ship which carried a doctor we turned about and made for the spot which the Oliva had indicated as her position.

WEAK SIGNALS

"We met the Friderun still looking for the Oliva and we then set about the search also, but the messages were so weak that it was impossible to maintain contact sufficiently long to use the direction finder effectively. Later, we discovered that the messages were weak because the Oliva's neral had been destroyed by the fire and the temporary one rigged up Government's difficulties was of little use.

"Finally, as the result of obtaining, through some fluke, one clear message, I was able to get the position of the Oliva which was more than as her approximate position. Followed by the Friderun, we made for the Oliva and finally located her by see-(Continued on Page 5.)

Berlin, June 7. All priests in the Berlin diocese rend from their pulpits yesterday a statement refuting the charges of Propaganda Minister Dr. Josef Goebbels, to the effect that immorality existed among German Catholic churchmen. .The statement said that of the total of 21,461 priests in Ger-many only 41 had been accused of sexual offences, 21 of whom had already been sentenced.

A few hours later the Government announced the arrest of 11 more priests in Munich, including Father Rupert Mayer, who served with the German armies throughout the World War and was seriously wounded. All the accused are apparently charged with immorality.

The statement added: "Of priests belonging to orders nine are involved. and one has been found guilty. Hence of the 25,635 priests ordained, plus those in orders, less than one-quarter of one per cent, have been accused. DEFEATING THE MOTH

LIFE must be very tough for the modern moth! For the campaign against him becomes more rigorous Scrupulous cleanliness is the first weapon in moth warfare. Moths revel in soiled garments. They appear to thrive on a mixed diet of spots and cloth, and have a violent dislike to sunlight and fresh air.

Clothes which are to be stored should have a thorough sunning and airing first. Brushing or beating loosens eggs. Don't forget the seams and pockets. The female moth is full of guile and likes hidden spots.
Washing an article before storing for the summer is the wisest course.

If not washed, it should be well groomed and freed from stains. Moth-proof bags are a sound investment for safeguarding woollens and furs. They are to be had from any large stores. But, of course, each article must be brushed, cleaned, and aired before being consigned to the pentine, and put into the wardrobe harmonious.

Once moths get into upholstery it not strain for effect. Is difficult to get rid of them. Change of temperature helps. Put the article out of doors on a cold day, then return to the warm room. This will kill the moths. A bad ease should, of course, be put into expert hands without delay. Carpets require great care during summer mentlis. Any spots or stains should be dealt with at once, and newspaper placed underneath will safeguard the health of a carpet.

For the fitted type, sprinkle Epsom salts under the edge. Crush the salts first, so that they will not damage the carpet.

To de-moth furs and woollens, there is nothing to equal newspaper. Moths have no literary leanings, and hate the smell of printer's ink. When the parcel is made up, fold over the edges more than once, and paste along the openings. Cold surfaces also defeat the moth, so cotton or linen bags are excellent for storing furs. M. W.

"SUPER-GIANTS -OF INDUSTRY MUST GO"

Moscow, May 10. policy of creeting super-giants of industry—those enormous plants which were "featured" during the first two Five-year Plans-on the ground that they have sacrificed quality to quantity,

"The Gargantuan phase must go!" declared M. Mezhlauk, the new Commissar of Heavy Industry, at a Moscow conference of his executive

The conference was devoted to laying down the guiding principles of the third Five-Year Plan.

Among the huge structures affected by this new policy are the Magnito-gorsk and Kuznetsk steel plants, the Chelyabinsk tractor works and the Kramatorsk machine-building plants, Some of these employ more than 20,000 workers and form the centres around which entire new cities have been built.

With the groundwork of Russia's industrialisation now firmly established the central problem of the new plan will be the increase of the productivity of labour. Railway transport, vital to national defence, will be aided by the concentration of entire new industrial units near the sources of raw materials, thus freeing thousands of freight cars.

A SIGNIFICANT OMEN

"After what I have said you may believe that I am sincere in promising to lend a sympathetic car to the request which this Address contains, that is that if and when the need arisés I will do what I can to secure that this country for which I have so deep an affection, may recruit its population from a source which has already supplied such worthy citizens. This would be a service which i would gladly render in gratitude to which unite this country with Hongkong may continue to grow during my administration of that outpost of the Empire; it is, I hope, a significant omen that this country's import trade from Hongkong during the last five years has grown from less than five thousand to nearly ninety thousand dollars. The exports during the period are not so great; so far as know they consist of one Governor, now awaiting shipment.

"I cannot close these remarks without a word of acknowledgment of the excellent work done by the Chinese Association for the Chinese Association for the Chinese people' in British Guiana. You, Mr. President, have spoken modestly of that work and I will not reiterate your remarks. Both for those who are already here and find themselves in adversity or in need of recreation and friendly contacts and for those who seek a new home in this country, this Association plays the parts of guide, philosopher and friend. That is a very high conception of civic duty and its value is enhanced by the quiet unassuming way in which it is always carried out. On behalf of the country's administration I tender the Association my

Sir-Geoffry Northcote's modesty of mien is like Mr. Stanley Baldwin's. It merely cloaks a very shrowd mind, one which may or may not be capable of lightning flashes of judgment, but would, in any event, be careful to conceal them, letting you know only in instalments; as it were, that it has seen through you and your "propositions".

The fact is, that both Sir Geoffry and Lady Northcote intensely dislike anything loud, flashy, meretricious. No Governor of British Guiana has been more free of ostentation, and no Governor has carried off ceremonial occasions with more natural poise. He has revived the practice of Governors' walking along the lovely samaan-bordered alamedas with which the capital abounds; he uses the Mounted-Police out-riders before his state car only when the occasion really demands this picturesque bit of ceremonial.

HONGKONGWAKES NEW REQUEST Wants Team Here For

Chinese New Year: Feb. 4 Too Late

BIG FINANCIAL GUARANTEE

(By "Verlina")

According to a London newspaper, the Islington Corinthians football team will start their tour of the Near and Far East on October 9.

They will leave London on the Modaga on that date and are expected to return to England in May, 1938. ntrendy been chosen, with Harry Lowe, the old Spurs player as Eighteen out of 20 players have trainer-coach.

The schedule at the present time provides for the party to visit Malta on October 17, but the opening games will be played in Egypt, the squad being due in Port Said on October

They will then proceed by easy stages to Colombo, Calcutta, Ran-Penang, Philippines, China, Japan, Canada and United States.

According to present arrangements the Corinthians are expected in Hongkong on February 4, but it is hoped to get this changed as this date is subsequent to the Chinese New Year.

South China A. A. who are chiefly interested in the Corinthians' visit to Hongkong, are making big efforts to persuade the tourists to arrive in the Colony a few days earlier so that it will be possible to singe a programme of matches over the Chinese New

The Chinese have made a financial guarantee which has been accepted by the tourists. But emphasis has been placed on the fact that if the Corinthians cannot arrive here in time for the New Year, that they will be required to play on both the Friday and Saturday, February 5 and 6. otherwise there will be small chance of the Chinese obtaining good enough "gates" to cover the imposing guarantee which has been made.

However, I am officially informed that there is every likelihood of the Corinthians' changing their schedule in order to be in Hongkong during the Chinese New Year.

South China A.A. officials are going right ahead with preparations for the visit. ... Already.... a ... tentative programme has been formulated, providing for a match in which between the Corinthians and team fully representative of local clubs. It is possible that two players from five of the leading teams in Hongkong will be invited to participate.

Several of the Colony's best players will be absent in Shanghai for the Interport, but it is believed that it will be possible still to turn out a strong and representative team.

Helmets For Baseball Players

SEQUEL TO COCHRANE'S SKULL INJURY

Des Moines, Ia., May 30. All members of the Des Moines Western League team and three of the Cedar Rapids team were polo helmets as they went to but in their game here ito-day. The action was the result of the serious injury to Mickey Cochrane, Detroit Tiger manager, whose skull was fractured by a pitched ball inst week.

Western League, officials said that eight home runs clouted in the course of to-day's game proved that the experiment had been a "moral success." It was suggested, however, that a helmet lighter than a polo helmet be used, and that one be designed to protect only the side of the face toward the pitcher. Des Moines won the game by a 10-9 score.

TAKE UP

SEVEN-A-SIDE TEAM LIKELY

(By "Veritas")

A Chinese team may compete in next year's Seven-A-Side sugby competition for the Blarney Shield.

I am informed that strenuous efforts will be made to raise a Chinese Seven to take part in this fournament which is one of the biggest attractions of the rugger season in Hongkong.

Up to the present rugby has been played only by the Europeans in Hongkong, but it is believed that it will be found possible to raise a side of seven from the many Chinese who were educated in England and learnt the game there.

Dr. S. To Wong is very enthusiastic his utmost to get a team together.

CHINA'S FOOTBALL TOUR STARTS NEXT WEEK

A Team Of 18

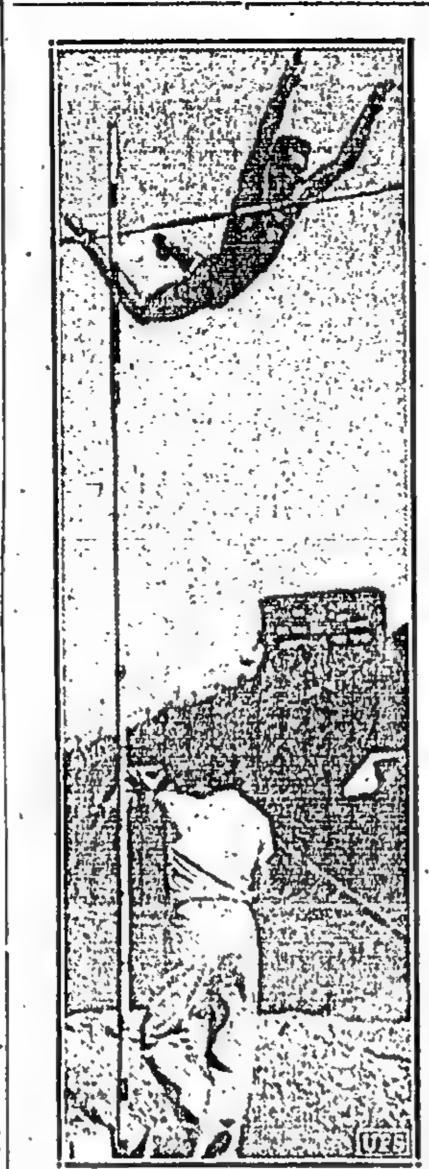

(By "Verltas")

South China Athletic Association will start off on their tour of Indo-China,, Siam, Malaya, Java and Bainvia next week, the squad of eighteen players leaving on Tuesday for Halphong.

An exceedingly full programme will be away for over three months. South China are taking their leading players including Lee Wai-tong, Li Tin-sang, Tam Kong-pak, Leung Wing-chul, Wong Mee-shun, Hing-choi, Lee Kwok-wai, Chan Tak-fat, Ho Ka-keung, Fung Kingcheung, Tay Qua-liang, Tso Kwaishing. Lai Shui-wing and others.

It is hoped also that Ip Pak-wa will be able to make the trip as this will probably be his last appearance in a representative S.C.A.A. side.

The Hongkong team will play in Salgon, Bangkok, Medan, and Penang on their way to Java and Batavia. It is not likely that a match will be played in Singapore, but Java and Batavia have suggested an imposing programme of something like a dozen

An unofficial Chinese swimming record was established at the South China Athletic Association's pavilion at North Point on Saturday night, when a South China team clipped a second off the Kwangtung Provincial mark for the 400 metres free-style relay during the course of a very successful opening gala. The bad weather failed to keep away enthusiasts, who turned up several hundred strong and were treated to some very good swimming. ..

As the record time of four minutes and 45 seconds for the relay was set up in the sea, with a fairly strong current moving one way, it will not be officially recognised.

Mrs. S. W. Ts'o, wife of the Hon. Dr. S. W. Ts'o, distributed the prizes at the conclusion of the gala: The results, in detail, were as of the fact that not millions but milliards of microbes and bacteria are living in a neglected mouth, that is, in a mouth that has not been daily antiseptically cleansed, it seems nothing less than disgusting to allow such distruction to continue in our mouths and feeth.

It is simply incredible that there still exist many educated people who refuse to realise that it is an absolute necessity not only for the preservation of the teeth, but also for the general health, to free their mouth daily from the bacteria which destroy their teeth. Odol arrests most thoroughly and effectively all fermentation and decomposition in the mouth. Everyone who uses Odol regularly every day Insures the greatest protection for his teeth and mouth that signtific discovery has up to the present time made possible. Odol is daily used by thousands of doctors and dentists themselves.

PASSIONATE POET

with the OMETY LYRE

by F. G. H. Salusbury

O speak the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth may justly be required of the average witness; it cannot be expected. It should not be exacted, of any critical writer or lecturer on any form of

This wrote Algernon Charles Swinburne, the greatest lyric poet of the ninteenth century—and for how much else of Time?-the cdntenary of whose birth was recently celebrated.

So I have his own authority for praising him in a wilful way; over-emphasising here, underrating there; omitting on an imperial scale—even if I knew the whole truth about him.

I cannot see that anyone knew or knows the truth about this glorious, ecstatic, violently enthustastic, passionately prejudiced poet, whose Muse responded rapturously to "alcoholic stimulants." though I would back the late, much maligned Theodore Watts-Dunton, with whom Swinburne kept house for the last thirty years of his life, to have known most.

But, again as Swinburne said, "Let us begin at the end, as all reasonable people always do."

THEN Swinburne died. on April 10, 1909, he was held by many people to have had the poet's flame in him damped, if not entirely quenched, by Watts-Dunton.

The legend has grown and swollen, battening on the hypocritical venom with which smug romanticism regards avowed respectability, and Watts-Dunton was all that. The romantics wanted Swinburne, who had certainly been a young devil, to die an old devil. Watts-Dunton did nothing to change_the_essential_Swinburne...

But he saved his life. It was a highly neurotic, semidissipated invalid of 43 who came to share his house, "The Pines," at Putney. It was a pleasantly eccentric, brilliantly intellectual, contented old poet who died there. Part of the truth seems to be that those who have been emotionally disturbed by Swinburne, flung to heights and left to find their own way down as best they may-for Swinburne's rebellions give no satisfaction—resent him having final comfort. They grudge the most turbulent river winding somewhere safe to afternoon tea. And, now, to go back to the be-

A former Lady Swinburne, bore her husband thirty children, who all'lived and throve. Swinburne mentions her in a letter to Clarence Stedman, and adds, "I think you will allow that when this race chose at last to produce a poet, it would have been at least remarkable if he had been content to write nothing but chapels and drawing-rooms." His childhood was spent between the Isle of Wight and Northumberland; and the sea early got into his blood-the sea, his Mother Sea, whose tides swing through his poetry like the pulsing of a heart. Of swimming he writes, "Once more I give me, body and soul to thee, who hast my soul for ever . . ."

TIVE years at Eton, and four at Oxford, sent him into the world bubbling with poetry.

It was, poetleally, a staid world, bound (as Sir Edmund Gosse said) in the bondage of the lambic: Swinburno left it "reveiling in the freedom of the choriambus, the dactyl and the anapæst."

Let us illustrate that. An iambic is a metrical "foot"-a poetical rhythm—consisting of a short syllable followed by a long one. Let observation with extensive

When he published "Atalanta in Calydon "-that glorious lyrical tragedy of Greek mythology-he appealed to the more cultivated, but narrower, public of 1865. When he published "Poems and Ballads," in 1866, he created a sensation that it is hard to imagine to-day.

"Poems and Ballads" at once intoxicated and shocked. There was the marvellous rhythm of them; their cataract of words, wild and entrancing; and there was evidence "that the author deemed fit for poetical treatment certain passional aspects of human life concerning which the best English tradition had hitherto been one of reticence."

That was very naughty of him: and, of course, all the "shocking" passages were credited by the shocked to his personal experience.

OWINBURNE was never deprayed: but he was always in extravagant revolt, and a rebel of the most disconcerting type. He hypnotises his followers, but leads them nowhere. _He_cannot_see_the_goal_himself: he only knows he is inspired by a blind hatred of conventions and a yearning for what Buddhists call the Inexpressible Absolute. He looked for God, but could not see through his loathing of priests and religions.

He sought Freedom, worshipping Mazzini, the Italian liberator, and Victor Hugo, who exiled himself from the second French Empire; but he was profoundly relieved when Mazzini told him that he need not stand for Parliament (as he had been invited to do, with all expenses paid), that he was doing the Cause a greater service with his natural work.

So gladly he returns to his wind is about them. . . . We see him as a young man with a mane of Titian-red hair. He is five feet four inches in height; his eyes are piercingly blue; his voice almost shrill. He moves his hands a great deal; he is excited about everything; he walks jerkily.

Dr. Arthur Compton-Rickett has described his quarrels with cabmen conducted in the "choicest Rabelaisian language"; how he would falter when reading his poems to a circle of friends until restored with a couple of glasses of champagne—and his exit from the room, after a jerky bow right and left, like the object of a vanishing trick.

He plunged into the Bohemian life of London, and nearly wrecked himself. Dante Gabriel Rossetti had a good influence on him, but he only found real peace and icisure in his association with Watts-Dunton, and produced as fine work, despite that supposed wet-blanket, as he had done before.

TTE loved children, All lis life he either loved or hated: there was no middle course for him, as is particularly apparent in his literary criticism, and such criticism, J think, is the most delightful: the jury should make its considered judgment for itself after hearing the prejudiced counsel. Swinburne never belonged to a jury! he was ever the special pleader. What more of the truth? He wasa wit. His parodies in "Heptalogia" are brilliant, including one of himself. He never lost his ardour, ready for battle to the end. And did not Dr. Compton-Rickett once see him; as an old man, dancing on Putney Heath in worship of a blossoming almond tree? Watts-Dunton gave us the inscription he would-had he a voice in the matter-have put on a marble column to Swinburne's memory. But I think I have a better one. It is from Coleridge's Kubla Khan-

Keep

IN some form or other half the world is trying to get the other half to keep a secret, usually with indifferent success. The receiver of secrets never intends to say a word.

But the success and failure of secret keeping, or giving away, has an interesting psychology.

What makes anybody tell a secret who has been expected to keep slience? Exactly the same thing which has caused the original teller of the secret to tell it to her namely of the secret to tell it to her-namely, the mental itching.

The faint irritation of an idea, an irritation to be relieved only by the counter-irritant of turning the idea into words, is intensely contagious. If one realised that in yielding to the desire to tell a secret they are giving to another the infection which is infecting them, it would be obvious that the odds are against the secret being kept.

. In some people this "itching to tell" is far stronger than in others. Certain people are more susceptible to the maindy. Who are the susceptible ones? Women? Consider a tea table. . The affairs of yeslerday, to-day, and to-morrow have been carefully reviewed, and talk dies with the breeze.

Somebody joins the party, and the party turns to him gratefully. "What have you heard"? Science, education, politics, and ethics-what things are these to offer at tea? The new arrival remembers something which has recently been confided to him. What fun to make the party sit up! He says casually, "By the way, I understand-" And the party sits up and takes notice. The secret-teller has fed in himself an obscure desire, never sufficiently nourished by ten.

Fundamentally the secret-teller is a vain person. He wants a momentary spotlight, and to reveal a secret has the effect of drawing temporary attention to himself. He wants to be a little centre of interest and attention.

If he could be brilliant, he would. If he had something spley to reveal legitimately, he would reveal it. It he had at the moment any better way of accenting his own importance by appearing to have the inside knowledge of some affair, he would choose that way. But as none of these is his, he selzes them by capture. He recalls the secret entrusted to him. It is his drum. He bangs

What else is accountable for the revealing of secrets? Sometimes the desire to help someone else—to give him a hint, a tip for his own good, to turn an advantage his way.

Say the secret runs like this: "The-Smiths-are-going-to-sell-theirhome in the autumn and move to Brighton, but they do not want anything said for business reasons.' But the one who hears realises that Smith's job would be fine for his brother, or that Smith's house would be desirable for his brother-in-law. The resulting confidences, and inquirles sufficiently advertise to two circles that the Smiths are leaving for Brighton.

A Social Lever

Sometimes personal advantage occrues to the one, imparting the secret. Special knowledge; is 'a-kind of legal tender which can be used socially as well as commercially. If a man is confidentially told that Smith is to have some property left him, he can do a good turn to the real estate men of his acquaintance if he tells them of Smith's prospects.

But neither of these two grounds for secret telling is so common as is the first, for the obvious reason that these involve appreciable points of honour-a brand of honour which the incident was brought to his regard-whereas a mental itch is more difficult to recognise as involved with

Another psychological basis for secret telling is the curious idea-that, because someone is a wife or a husband or a relative, he or she is excepted from a promise to keep silence. This strange tribal trace remains in many otherswise quite sane and fairly evolved individuals. It is a survival of "keeping it all in the family," whether it is disgrace or distinction. Here are five queries:--

Is the desire to take part in talk or in life a masculine or a feminine trait, or both? 'Is, a desire to interest someone whom one loves a musculine or a feminine trait, or both?

Is the impulse to confide a secret | to one of the family a masculine or a feminine impulse? Is the temptation to gain personal advantage masculine or feminine, and do men or women most often vield to this temptation? Is the desire to be in the spotlight masculine or feminine, or both?

Sex Equality

The answer to three of these querles is unquestionably-both. That is, it is unquestionably both a masculine and a feminine impulse to take part

Local Firm Gets Judgment

A breach of contract to supply 10 and 15 tons of gall nuts was proved by Petersen & Co., plaintiffs, against the Yun-kwong, as Tal Shing, No. 25, Leighton Hill Road, defendant, in a claim for $3,309.39 before the Chief Justice, Sir Atholl MacGregor, this signed the contracts unreservedly and had made himself responsible for them. Plaintiff also contended that

Mr. H. Arfas, senior pariner Petersen & Co., said he knew Ho as a broker and had done some business with him.. Ho overhead him discussing gall nut business with a client and offered his services. Witness agreed, and gall nuts were bought from defendant, he receiving one per cent, commission at the satisfactory conclusion of the first contract. Witness paid a visit to No. 25, Leigton Hill Road where he saw the goods, '

CONTRACT CANCELLED

Two more contracts were entered into with defendant to supply 15 and 10 tons of gall nuts. He later asked for an extension of time, which was allowed, but then did not appear at the office again. Witness had to cable his Hamburg buyers that he was unable to deliver, and he paid £190 to cancel the contract. This was the best course he could take, as the price of gall nuts had risen so much that he would have lost more by buying elsewhere. In addition to this amount, his claim included cable expenses and $200 for loss of profit,

Witness said that sometime after he had granted an extension of time, a letter purporting to be from Wuchow, but unstamped, and delivered by hand, was received at the office. The letter was written on a plain sheet of paper and asked for a fur-ther extension of time for Ho. Witness could not decipher the signature, and threw the letter away as a fake. Cross-examined, witness said he made the contract out to Tai Shing because defendant told him to and had said that it was his company. He was not sure of the address at Leighton Hill Road but was certain he did not visit two premises on the nceasion in question.

Se To Cheuk-yu, broker, of Petersen & Co.; said that in all his dealings with defendant he did not hint that he was an employee."

Ho Kai-yuen, chief clerk of Petersen & Co., said he witnessed the signing of documents by defendant. He also denied visiting two premises with Mr. Arfas and Ho.

Abortion Quite Common

Woman Sent To Prison

That abortion is quite widely practised among certain sections of the lower-class Chinese, though cases by Chief Detective-Inspector J. Murphy when he appeared before Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy this morning to prosecute Kwok San-ho, a young married woman, on a charge of using instruments to procure an abortion on Yun Lan-fong, married woman, living at No. 11 Upper Lascar Row.

Outlining the facts, Mr. Murphy said the woman upon whom the operation had been performed had a large family and was hard put to it to support them. She was therefore not at all keen on having any more children. She had heard of the defendant, who had a reputation for practising abortion and engaged her and on June 1 accused went to
